Background note

In 1895, Henry Phillips left a portion of his estate to the American Philosophical Society to support research in archaeology and philology, to which supplementary bequests were added in 1903 by his aunt, Emily Phillips, and uncle, Henry M. Phillips. Originally used to acquire books in these subject areas, the increasing strength of the APS collections for Native American languages combined with a critical need for support for primary research led to a gradual change in the use of the Phillips Fund.

Since the 1930s, the APS had provided grants to support research on Native American languages, but in 1941, a Special Committee on the Future Policy of the Library recommended tapping the Phillips Fund for this purpose. Following approval of the Committee on the Library in 1944, the first grant under the Phillips Fund was awarded in the fall, 1945, supporting Zellig Harris of the University of Pennsylvania in his research on the Cherokee language. Since the 1960s, the results of Phillips grants -- including field notes, audio and visual recordings, dissertations, and published and unpublished works -- have been sent to the Library for inclusion in its collections.

The Phillips Fund currently provides grants for research in Native American linguistics and ethnohistory, and the history of studies of Native Americans, in the continental United States and Canada. Grants are not made for projects in archaeology, ethnography, psycholinguistics, or for the preparation of pedagogical materials.

Scope & content

The Phillips Fund Collection contains material submitted to the American Philosophical Society by grantees of the Phillips Fund for Native American Research. The subdisciplines represented and the subject matter are highly varied, but include project reports, dissertations, published and unpublished papers, dictionaries and vocabularies, field notes, and audiovisual materials.

While no systematic effort was made to gather the results of early Phillips grants, several grantees, including Zellig Harris, sent sound recordings, notes, or other works anyway. In most cases, these were incorporated into the American Council of Learned Society's Committee on Native American Languages Collection (also known as the Franz Boas Linguistic Collection).

Native American Images note : Over 400 black and white silver gelatin photographs, color photographs, color slides, color VHS video, photocopy prints, and ink sketches of eleven different Native American tribes contained in thirteen grantee reports from 1964-1995. Arranged alphabetically by contributor, the images reflect Seneca political charts (Abler); Mayan street festivals (Adams); early Minnesota Dakota settlements (Bray); old Oraibi Hopi pueblo (Cameron); murals of Oklahoma tribes (Carlisle); Taino island scenes (Forbes); Navajo mountain community (Hammond); Conquest of Itza (Hellmuth); Hopi pottery (Kealiinohomoku); Stockbridge-Munsee community (Mochon); Dakota Pine Ridge reservation (Powers); Mixtec picture-writing (Troike); Seneca dwellings (Wylar). Of note, the Oklahoma post office murals of Seminoles, Kiowa, and Chickasaws were painted by Native American artists from 1939-1943. Also of note, the Bray video details cartographer Joseph Nicolle 1836-1840 expedition to the Upper Mississippi River. Most of the grants are referenced in Freeman's Guide to manuscripts relating to the American Indian. The slides by Powers are housed in the Photograph Collection; the photographs by Mochon are in the Speck Collection (572.97 Sp3, Box 10, folders 22-23). All other images are housed with their corresponding textual reports.

"Materials On The Hare Indians, Fort
Good Hope, N.W.T. Canada"

Background note

From 1961-1964, Hiroko Sue Hara conducted ethnographic and linguistic research of the Hare Indians of Fort Good Hope, Northwest Territory, Canada. Funded by the National Museum of Canada, the Northern Co-ordination and Research Centre of the Canadian government, and the APS Phillips fund, the analysis of her research findings culminated in her doctoral thesis for Bryn Mawr College, Hare Indians and their World (1964).

Native American Images note : Nearly 1,500 black and white silver gelatin contact prints of Hare Indians at the Mackenzie River and Colville Lake, Northwest Territory, Canada from 1961-1962. Ethnographic images of tents, sleds, canoes, hunting and fishing equipment, utensils, native attire and accessories. Primarily field photographs of men, women and children by Hiroko Sue Hara with some prints of C. Osgood's 1928 artifact collection at the National Museum of Canada in Ottawa. An illustration of the structures and activities associated with the temporary camp groups of this nomadic tribe. Referenced in the Supplement to Freeman's Guide to manuscripts relating to the American Indian. Housed in the Photograph collection, call number 572.97 Sp3, Box 3, folders 24-35, Film 1175.

"Observations of Michigan Indians;
1967-68"

72 color photographs and slides of Chippewa (Ojibway) Indians performing native dances in Michigan, 1967. Taken by Kurath and others while conducting field studies primarily in Ann Arbor, and Lansing, include images of men, women and children in full native attire performing the partridge, snake, corn, swan, grass, corn-grinding, and dance to the four winds. Of note, an approximately thirty minute, 16 millimeter color film (Film 1257) of a Chippewa celebration in Veteran's Memorial Park, Ann Arbor, Michigan, 1967. Referenced in the Supplement to Freeman's Guide to manuscripts relating to the American Indian.
